GrandLoving: Making Memories With Your Grandchildren

Synopsis

Incorporating advice from more than 350 families nationwide, this guide offers specific tips for bonding with grandchildren, from babies to teens. Along with a completely revised resource section, this fifth edition features expanded sections on Skyping, texting, and social networking—Facebook, Flickr, MySpace, Twitter, and YouTube. Among the guide's hints are more than 225 easy, low-cost, do-together, and long-distance activities such as ideas for successful visits, holidays, and family traditions. While primarily intended for use by grandparents, this sourcebook's strategies and suggestions can also help daycare providers, separated parents, extended family members, and teachers grow closer to the children in their lives.

Wish that this book wasn't gender biased (but guess I should have guessed that from the cover). My husband is very involved with the grandkids too and was going to read the book--he was disappointed b/c of the gender bias too.

Sorry, this book is kind of stupid. Surely you can think back to what made your childhood fun? I'm not sure what possessed me to buy itÃ¢â€žâ¢ I guess I thought maybe there might be something new in there.

I bought this before my granddaughter was born. I have referred to it several times, most recently for ideas when my now 3 year old granddaughter was visiting. I like how it gives suggestions for all ages from infants to teens. I will be referring to it again and again as my granddaughter grows and after baby #2 arrives.

Part of a Christmas gift for my sister-law and first-time grandmother. She was really interested in the book and said it gave her many ideas to make grandma-grandson time memorable for both..

Meh. The description is clear, but I was looking for some truly creative ideas and real insights. I do not think most of what is in the book is truly new or interesting.

poor writings

I will be a first time grandmother in April and was looking for a book where I could record information about my life. I write in one color of ink and my husband writes in another. We probably should have gotten two books but we are sharing. I don't like to journal so this helps me stay focused on a particular subject or question. I write just every few days and will be finished by the time the baby arrives.

A very easy read with lots of specific, easy ideas for being present in your grandchild's life whether next door or across the country.
