I love this book. It has really changed and added to my parenting. each page is like reading a sermon. I will share that I don't think this book is for those parents who don't actually want to teach or train they're children. I mean, this book really calls you(the parent) to examine your own thinking and change. If you are not ready for that, don't buy it. I am a firm believer that God is the leader. I bought this book because I couldn't understand my two year old. He was always throwing tantrums and freaking out about everything. He was also very mean and unkind to his sister. Ok so he's two right? I was already seeing his character come out and it was not something I was prepared to deal with. A lot of my friends recommended this book. So I bought it. It changed my way of thinking and handling my son. Within in days I saw a difference in him and even the people around me started to notice he was so much more happier. It even helped me realize that my daughter who is a "good kid" naturally, needed to be called higher. She always obeys and does what shes told. But because of that we overlooked a lot of heart issues with her.

A keeper for my library! I am a Christian educator. The principles of parenting apply to Christian schools as well. I am grateful for this wise and biblical analysis of shepherding children's hearts.

I wish I had read this before having children or when my children were very small. It also echoes, on a milder level, many of the ideals presented in David Platt's Radical.

Tedd Tripp offers Biblical advice on getting to the heart issues when raising your children. I highly recommend this book for parents of young children.

We often give this as a gift to Christian parents! Do we want our kids to obey us or grow up just to please us and society? Or do we want to help them connect with God personally and live to please Him and love Him on their own? A real eye-opener.

Whether you are a believer or not, this book give you down to earth practical advice to raise your child by treating him or her as a spiritual being and not as an animal would it's offspring. We are intelligent, rational creatures, and should think of our children in this light. I give this book out to all new mums and dads.

Absolutely wonderful book!

Tedd Tripp with his Biblical knowledge and practical experience as a parent, provides parents with the tools necessary to be faithful to the incredible blessing and responsibility that we have as parents. It is a daunting task, but God through the power of His Word and Spirit provides sufficient grace, that enables us to shepherd our children on His behalf.
