Brian Urlacher (Football Superstars)

Synopsis

For a decade, middle linebacker Brian Urlacher has been the symbol of the Chicago Bears football team. Urlacher led his small-town high school to a state championship and then led the nation in tackles at the University of New Mexico. Chosen by the Chicago Bears as the ninth pick in the NFL draft in 2000, he surprised everyone by winning Defensive Rookie of the Year honors. Since then, Urlacher has become one of the most popular players in the NFL. He helped lead the Bears to the playoffs several times, in addition to Super Bowl XLI in 2007. He has won several Defensive Player-of-the-Year awards and ESPN named him to their All-Decade team in 2009. In this new biography, learn about Urlacher's troubled upbringing and his team spirit, plus how he leads his life both on and off the field.
