Do you believe in fairies? If so, this book will delight you. "It wasn't produced for someone who isn't a believer in things magical," observes photographer Anne Geddes, who clearly is. What is also abundantly clear is that she appreciates the charm of babies and small children, and the role that fantasy plays in their young lives. Her tiny models become fairies, gnomes, sunflowers, water lilies, field mice, ladybugs, and peas in a pod in this amusing and endearing volume.

Australian photographer Geddes (The Twelve Days of Christmas, 1995) is well known for her, well, strange pictures of babies. Now she sets the tots Down In The Garden ($49.95; Sept. 15, 1996; 160 pages; ISBN 1-55912-017-7). In full-page color photos (even some gatefolds), we see babies as pea pods, babies in cocoons, one newborn with butterfly wings resting on a mushroom, babies in flowerpots with bouquets on their heads. Mostly, all you see of them are their baby faces: with happy, isn't-this-a-riot expressions; astonished, how-did-I-get-in-here expressions; and, occasionally, perplexed, how-do-I-get-out-of-here expressions. A sweet bouquet of babies. (First printing of 150,000; author tour) -- Copyright ©1996, Kirkus Associates, LP. All rights reserved.

The book itself was in great shape. Images crisp and not worn. Have not read/reviewed it thoroughly yet but otherwise happy with the product.

This was a gift to a dear friend who use to have this book and lost it during a move. I sent it as a birthday gift. It came in excellent condition and was just as it said.

Not as cute as I thought, but as far as I know the cutest baby coffee table book out there. Some of the pictures are more weird than cute, some are cute. Just what you would expect, except a little less cute.

Absolutely wonderful!! Such a delightful twist to the world "gardening". It is refreshing to know that in our world today, there is still such beauty & innocents in eyes of an artist, such as, Anne Geddes.

Adorable pictures. I sent it for a gift. It was better than ever, because Ann Geddes was on the Katie Couric show and told how she did the shots--none photoshopped Anne Geddes is so talented. The pics are just fabulous.

Every item I have in the last 6 months has met or exceeded my expectations! Great job! DCF

Another good book for an elderly dementia sufferer.
