Rosamund Kidman Cox was the editor of BBC Wildlife Magazine for 23 years. She is the coeditor of books including Frozen Planet, Life, and Planet Earth for BBC Books.

This is the roundup of the years best photos in a Wildlife Photography Contest. There are literally tens of thousands of entries, but these are the cream of the crop. I was fortunate to be in Bruges,

Belgium this year where they had an exhibit of the winners from last year's contest, and I was awestruck. I bought last year's book at the museum, and then ordered about 5 previous years' books off when I returned to the US. When you open the book your jaw will drop page, after page, after page. The stories behind the photos are also fascinating. It's the best table top series I have ever seen, and totally worth the price. I bought 5 of these to give away as Christmas gifts this year. Of course, 1 for me to keep, and 4 to give away. You'll never go wrong with this product, and I'm looking forward to collecting all of them.

Great book at a great price. Might seem like classic "coffee table" fare, but really does deserve a close read, even without a photography background.

The last few issues, while good, didn't match the earlier issues.
