LOVE this cookbook! Some reviews comment their disappointment at frozen vegetables or canned goods being used in the recipes but to be honest - I'm happy that it does! As a married couple on a budget, we are always striving to make our money and food stretch a little farther every week. I'm thrilled to know that I have many of the items in my cupboards right now to cook up something healthy, easy and delicious!

Slow cooker is a working vegan's best friend. Nice to have so many different options and super easy is an accurate description of the recipes. What could be better? Healthy, Vegan, Slow Cooker, EASY! Love this Veg for 26 years, and vegan on and off for many, that too often hasn't translated into healthy eating, mainly due to poor planning and lack of time. Over and over, I looked at my lonely crock-pots in the pantry, wondering if they might be the solution. But, not so hot at coming up with recipes on my own, all I could do was wonder, aside from making the occasional pot of chili. A fan of Toni's blog, I was excited when I heard the topic of her cookbook. And just as I'd hoped and expected, it's a straightforward presentation of practical but appetizing recipes. I've only had a chance to try two so far, but both came together quickly and did not disappoint. Even my kids were impressed, which was my goal. So, with a bunch of recipes dog-eared and ready to try, I know I'll be cooking my way through this book over and over, thankful for its getting us back on course!

So far I really like this. Being that it is summer I have not made a lot yet from it, but what I have is good, it is easy to make and uses common sense. In other words you are not spending an hour with prep time. I cannot give it 5 stars yet because I have not used it enough yet.

Love it!

A good, ready source of recipes for the slow-cooker approach, which in turn helps keep my days organized. A worthwhile purchase!

It is difficult to find a book of recipes good enough to hold my husband's attention. This is the best intersection between foodie fabulousness and convenience.

We use this constantly!
